DON'T LOOK BACK

The story of Rabbi Yisha'ayahu Seidenfeld

Rabbi Seidenfeld's son, Howard, who accompanied him to Hungary last year for the filming of this documentary, will be present to answer questions.

Rabbi Yisha'ayahu Seidenfeld was born in Bodrogkeresztúr, Hungary, in 1930. His father, Rabbi Shlomo Seidenfeld, belonged to the court of Rabbi Yeshaya Steiner Z"l, known as Rabbi Yeshaya'le Kerestirer. At the age of one and a half, he moved with his family to Tiszasuj, where his father served as Rabbi and cantor of the small local Jewish community. In 1943, due to harsh Antisemitic outbursts against his father, his family was forced to move to the city of Szeged, and his two brothers were drafted into forced labor for the Hungarian army. In May 1944, after the occupation of Hungary, Rabbi Seidenfeld was forcibly moved into the ghetto in the city, along with his parents and sisters. A few weeks later, the Seidenfeld family was deported by rail to the Strasshof concentration camp near Vienna, and from there taken to a labor camp. In April 1944 Rabbi Seidenfeld was deported, together with his family and other Jews, to the Theresienstadt ghetto, where his father died of typhus. At war's end, Rabbi Seidenfeld returned to Szeged, and from there immigrated to pre-state Israel in February 1947, aboard the illegal immigrant ship, Hama'apil Ha'almoni ("The Unknown Immigrant"). The ship was stopped at sea and sent to the displaced persons camp in Cyprus, where Rabbi Seidenfeld stayed until finally immigrating at the end of that year. He enlisted to the Israeli army in 1949, and three years later moved to Canada, where he married Eszter Chana Feige; the two started a family. Rabbi Seidenfeld has been active in education for many years, and has managed several religious learning institutions. In 2001, he fulfilled his dream and returned to live in Israel.

A Very Special Shabbat with MORDECHAI (MARK) HALAWA

Mark Halawa was born in Kuwait to a "Palestinian Refugee" family and raised as a Muslim. His education included indoctrinating hatred towards Jews and Christians. After the first gulf war, he and his family moved to Amman, Jordan, where he attended High School and then spent two years at the Thishreen University in Latakia, Syria. The next two years of his education was spent at the University of Western Ontario in Canada. It was there that he met a Rabbi serving as a Professor of Philosophy. In the course of their discussions Mark made mention that his maternal grandmother was born Jewish, met and married a Jordanian soldier, and then ran off to Nablus and converted to Islam. The ensuing conversation caused mark to face his new reality that he was actually his own enemy who he had been taught to despise. Mark's life journey now headed in a completely different direction with many twists and turns, creating a fascinating and intriguing story. Today, Mark, now Mordechai resides in Jerusalem with his wife and daughter.

LAG B'OMER

(the 33rd day of the Omer count) commemorates the lives and teachings of two of the greatest Talmudic sages in Jewish history, Rabbi Shimon Bar Yochai and Rabbi Akiva.

Rabbi Shimon Bar Yochai is the celebrated author of the Zohar, the magnum opus of the Kabbala. Rabbi Akiva was a legendary spiritual leader of the Jewish people. He was also a personal teacher to twenty four thousand students. His major teachings expanded upon the precept of "Love your fellow as yourself". Rabbi Shimon, who was his student, continued this emphasis imploring all to "Live together as brothers". The combined teachings of these two giants help make this day a powerful celebration of unity and community.
